A Soldier's Story World War I:

In 1992 when my grandmother passed away, I found an old cardboard carnation box in her attic. When I opened it, I discovered that it was filled with letters and postcards from her brother that he had written while serving in World War 1. Hear an account of his life and some of the experiences he encountered while serving as a Bugler in the Army during World War 1.

Following this lecture Barbara will talk about "What Can You Learn From Genealogy" where she will share some interesting things she learned about her ancestors!

Barbara Leiger Granato is an avid genealogy researcher and is currently serving as the Registrar for Oneida Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution based in Utica, New York. She is a member of the Association of Professional Genealogists, the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, and several other genealogy organizations. She teaches a Beginning Genealogy class at Mohawk Valley Community College, and serves on the Board of the Oneida County History Center in Utica.
